Intelligence received from the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., announces the discovery of a new comet in the constellation of Virgo. It is a striking coincidence that this new and bright comet appeared at the same hour President Garfield was breathing his last. It was first seen by E. E. Barnard in Nashville, Tenn., who has made claim through Prof. Swift for the Warner price of $200 gold. This makes the fifth comet seen since May first, and of this number four have appeared from almost the same spot in the heavens.

REPLYING to President Arthur, the London Spectator says: "All Englishmen are interested in the only Englishman (meaning President Arthur) who reigns by election, and are solicitous that he do nothing lowering an office that half of them feel must one day exist in England."

The fact that Col. Bliss, one of the lawyers selected by Attorney General MacVeagh to assist him in the prosecution of the star-route rascals, is an intimate personal and political friend of President Arthur is taken as an indication that under the new administration the prosecutions commenced against Brady and his associates during President Garfield's Administration will be pushed vigorously. Col. Bliss said some time ago that the prosecutions would probably result in very important convictions.—Chicago Tribune.

A Talented Lady's View.

Mrs. C. F. Fleming, State Lecturer of Missouri, and also an artist of rare merit, whose picture of Adelaide Neilson is pronounced by the press to be the most beautiful portrait in the United States, in a recent letter said: "I have been troubled with kidney disease since my childhood, and it finally culminated in chronic catarrh of the bladder. It would be impossible for me to describe how much I have suffered, and I had abandoned all hope of ever being cured. I was, however, recommended to try Webster's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and it has done me more good than the combined skill of all the physicians I have ever tried during my entire life. Such testimony is beyond question, and proves the value to all ladies of the remedy it advocates." 24-d&wiv

Even a nervous person should try Carter's Little Nerve Pill. They are made especially for nervous and dyspeptic men and women, and is just the medicine needed by all persons who, from any cause, do not sleep well, or who fail to get proper strength from their food. Cases of weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous and sick headache, etc., readily yield to the use of the Little Nerve Pill, particularly if combined with Carter's Little Liver Pill. In vials, at 50 cents. For sale by Hubbard & Swannings. 21

QUINCY, ILL., Sept. 24.—A fearful tornado passed over Quincy at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Many buildings were demolished, uprooted, or otherwise damaged.

The tobacco factory of Joel Harrison & Son, the foundry of Boanet, Duffy & Co., and the foundry of Comstock, Castle & Co., suffered severely, and many employees were injured. Four persons were killed and thirteen injured, so far as known, in these establishments.

Three school houses were partly destroyed. Some of the mills also suffered damage.

Business houses and residences were uprooted, trees blown down, and telegraph communication completely destroyed.

Accounts are coming in of extensive damage in all parts of the city and suburbs.

The track of the hurricane was two miles wide.

The streets of Quincy are strewn with debris, some of them being absolutely blocked with trees, timbers, chimneys, etc.

The financial loss is variously estimated, but will not be less than $100,000.

The northern and eastern portions of the state escaped almost entirely.

The wind was accompanied by terrible noise, thunder, lightning and hail.

JOINT, ILL., Sept. 24.—The storm at 5 o'clock this evening wrecked ten buildings and destroyed the foot-bridges across the Des Plaines river.

The home of Mr. James Gallaher was washed down killing his horse. His house blown down from the foundation, leaving his wife and son.

Mr. John Nichols hotel lost two large signs of plate glass.

The damage in the city is estimated at $100,000.

Following along the Kankakee river, the range of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis road, 500 feet in length, was washed down by the storm.

The damage in the city is estimated at $100,000.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

What the Newspapers Have to Say About General Arthur.

Sadly as we may deplore the President's soul taking off, we feel assured that no one will have occasion to distrust the unselfish patriotism of him who under the provisions of the constitution is called upon to succeed him. Patriotic, public spirited, experienced in public affairs, he will bring to the administration of the government a purpose as pure and high as any man that has filled the presidential chair.—Springfield (Ill.) Journal.

As we have recently shown, Mr. Arthur is not at all the sort of a man he has been pictured in the malicious trades of unscrupulous opponents, but a gentleman who by character, capacity and right instincts will not figure unfavorably in the list of our chief magistrates. His accession to the presidency cannot lead to any such unseemly difficulties in a party sense as have resulted from previous successions of this nature; for, though there has not been full sympathy between certain sections of Republican leaders, there never has been any doubt whatever that Mr. Arthur was in full accord with all recognized authority on the national policy of his party.—N. Y. Herald.

Mr. Arthur is a man of the very highest reputation for honesty of heart and integrity of purpose. To a mind of great natural strength he has added by study and experience the benefits of sound education, not only in the range of general literature, but also to a marked degree in the legal profession, in which he is the peer of the ablest lawyers at the bar. In every relation of life he has been true, in every business and official regard trustworthy, efficient and capable. He possesses every quality which, upon acquaintance, will endear him to the people as closely and sincerely as they held his predecessor. Like President Garfield, President Arthur was born of the people, and won for himself, without extraneous aids, a place in the front rank of American statesmen. His life has been one of success, never failing, but always advancing and upward.—Indianapolis Journal.

General Arthur is a man of peculiar generosity of nature and delicacy of feeling, and he will, therefore, be especially quick to appreciate the deep responsibility of his position. His situation is one which calls for no envy and no sharp criticism; it compels rather the kindly sympathy and consideration of all men of intelligence and feeling. It is not the time to recall past mistakes or insist upon any harsh interpretation of acts which may be open to question. He is our president, made such as an awful calamity which has chastened the hearts of all good citizens. We all earnestly desire the success of his administration, none more so than those who have disagreed with him. We are all ready to support and assist him, in the weighty task which has devolved upon him, to take care that the republic shall receive no detriment in this sorrowful hour.—N. Y. Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The President, as usual, rose early and took a drive after his 8 o'clock breakfast. On his return he looked brighter, the pallor which had been noticeable for some weeks giving way to a slight color. He had no special duty on hand this morning, and did not require the presence of his private secretary until 12 o'clock. About 10 o'clock Senator Frye, of Maine, and Senator Teller, of Colorado, called and remained an hour. There were no other callers during the morning. The President will not go to New York until a week from to-day, and then only for a day or two.

Four coal black horses provided the motive power for this carriage of death.

Arrival of the Remains of the President.

Great Outpouring of the People at the Funeral.

TERRIFIC STORMS AT QUINCY AND JOLIET.

Each of the four were a full broadcast neck and body blanket, edged on its lower fold with a silver fringe, and each was led by a colored groom. The Forty-second Ohio, General Garfield's old regiment, now reduced to less than fifty members, held the place of honor, and guarded the bier. Twenty thousand people were packed in and around the place, but all was as quiet as the tomb itself. It was a time for thoughts and sighs, and half-audible whispers—not for words.

Slowly and sadly, to the measured and mournful ringing of the bell, the engine, heavily draped, which drew the funeral train came down the track and halted at the station, at twenty minutes past one. A low murmur, not unlike a general sigh, arose from the vast crowd, and in an instant, every head was reverently uncovered and bared to the sun's beating rays. The Knights and the military presented arms, and preparations were immediately set on foot for disembarking. The guard of honor, consisting of the first offices of army and navy of the United States, and including the familiar and striking faces and forms of Sherman, Sheridan, Hancock, Drum and Rogers, all the more impressive in their full uniforms, alighted from the train and formed in double rank at the side of the funeral car.

The military body guard, conspicuous in their white hats and full uniforms, tenderly lifted the casket from the coach, and carried it on their powerful shoulders through the ranks of the guard of honor to the bier, while the Cleveland Grays' Band played a mournful march for the dead. The cabinet officers and their wives and the other government officials followed, the ladies in deep mourning, and the gentlemen bowed their uncovered heads. Mrs. Garfield, heavily veiled, leaning on the arm of her son Harry, and accompanied by Secretary Blaine, seemed bowed with her poignant grief, and yet determined to bear up under her appalling affliction with the heroic fortitude she has ever shown. Miss Mollie Garfield and the other members, as well as intimate friends of the family, followed in due order, while the guard of honor brought up the rear.

Mrs. Garfield and family, instead of entering the procession which formed now, were driven directly to the residence of Hon. James Mason, where they will stay until after the obsequies. The second section of the train, bearing the congressional delegation, arrived a few minutes later. The delegation was escorted to carriages, and the sad procession started. The cortège was perhaps a half mile long, but could easily have been made longer, and possibly more impressive, had it been expanded instead of being condensed in length by the wide columns marching abreast. Col. Wilson, of the government lighthouse service, and his staff rode at the head in command of the funeral escort. The Silver Grays' Band and the celebrated Forest City Troop followed closely.

Then came the hearse, guarded by the Knights Templar, in columns of three and flanked by ten horsemen of the City Troop on each side. The Cleveland Grays, the remnants of Gen. Garfield's old regiment, the members of the cabinet, Gen. Sherman and his aides, the guard of honor, the congressional delegation and other distinguished guests made up the melancholy procession, which, to the solemn tolling of the church bells, marched down Euclid Avenue and Erie Street, turned into Superior, and then in part proceeded to the catafalque in the public square. When the column reached the custom house arch, the cavalry halted, formed in line, and the bears with the Templars passed into the square.

This portion of the ceremony was of the most impressive character. The band played another dirge, while the big bell of the First Presbyterian Church, just outside the square, tolled a solemn accompaniment. The Knights Templar formed in line on the left as they approached the pavilion and were backed by a line of the local military. A detachment of the society passed up the incline leading to the catafalque, and the members of the local committee arranged themselves on either side.

The bears turned in toward the right, while the band, in muffled tones, played "Pleyel's Hymn," and the pallbearers, with uncovered heads, bore the body up the pavilion incline, and deposited it on the catafalque, where the atmosphere was fairly laden with the breath of flowers. Among those who stood about the remains as they were once more laid to rest were Governor Foster, of Ohio, and W. S. Rose, of Washington, a long-time friend of the dead president, and a leading member of the Christian Church which he attended. Twelve members of the City Troop, adorned as to their heads with immense bearskin caps, were selected to guard the body, and took up their position in thrones around the catafalque.

The park was opened to a few, who were provided with passes during the afternoon and evening, at which latter time the pavilion electric lights were all turned on, but none others were admitted to the silent precincts inclosing the dead.

The workmen kept hammering away all night. The necessity for their doing so is naturally deplored, and generally looked upon as about the only circumstance which may be said to mark to solemn an occasion. The remains will not be exposed to public view either in the square or at the cemetery. The time for that has passed. When the casket was sealed in Washington yesterday it was sealed for good, and the unrecognizable features of what was once so grand a combination of manly strength and beauty will henceforth be very properly hid from the public's gaze.

The park will be thrown open to-morrow, however, and a stream of humanity, but its own black hue was made all the more intense by the funeral trappings which decked it forth.

Four coal black horses provided the motive power for this carriage of death.

body, but on the velvet covered casket which incloses it.

Mourning services will be held in all the churches to-morrow, and the final services Monday will bring to this already overcrowded city hordes of people who will breath forth sighs and muffled imprecations at the lamentable lack of hotel and other accommodations afforded, or, rather, not afforded.

Mrs. Garfield,

while able to restrain

her feelings in public, gave way on reaching her carriage to the load of grief which oppressed her, and presented to those who were with her and saw her the sorrowful and pitiable spectacle of one overcome by a heartrending affliction. She grew calmer under the consolations of her friends, however, and once more seemed to have fortified herself by a resolution to bear up under her woes. Gen. Garfield's mother also arrived here to day, and is represented as being overwhelmed with grief and unresolvable to her loss. The children are doing bravely, and their example will probably not be without its good results.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Arthur has passed a quiet day. The great strain and excitement to which he has been subjected for the past three months have had some effect upon his physical system, and this morning he had what is called here "a dull chill," a malady manifest. The effects were not serious, however, and by noon he was able to receive the senators who called upon him, and soon afterwards commenced answering his mail, which has already become large. He used two stenographers to-day from the White House force. No applications for office have yet been received, and it is probable that the innumerable office-hunters will not be so shameless as to apply for a place before Garfield is laid in his grave. President Arthur certainly has not given any attention to official business of that sort, or to official business of any character not absolutely necessary. His first official act was to designate Admiral Nichols as acting secretary of the navy, pending the temporary absence of Secretary Hunt in the west. His two next acts were the issuance, in their order, of the proclamation making Monday next a day of humiliation and prayer, and the proclamation convening the senate in extraordinary session. Today he appointed some minor postmasters in places where it is necessary for the transaction of public business that new commissions should issue. Beyond this it is not the president's purpose to perform any official duties until after the funeral rites on Monday. He will himself observe the day by attending Divine worship at one of the Episcopal churches—the church which he generally attends—and he will not go to the executive office at the White House until Tuesday. He will transact public business at the White House, but will not make the executive mansion, for the present, at least, his personal home. It is not a fit place in its present condition for human habitation, as those who have watched the president's case for these three long, weary months can testify. Some expert has pronounced the plumbing good, but that expert did not long remain at the White House. And from its exposure to malaria it is unwholesome in many respects. The furniture is shabby and tawdry. More than that, it is even full of vermin. Those who found it necessary to watch in the last room for many nights during the last three months could not long remain there on that account. A considerable appropriation was made by the last congress to renovate the white house. The officers were about to make arrangements to do extensive repairs just at the time the President was shot. President Arthur will certainly not inhabit the white house as a residence until these repairs shall have been made. That will require a very considerable time. Meanwhile he will remain the guest of Senator Jones, of Nevada, for a few days until he selects a more permanent residence, which will be at one of the more private hotels.

The Washington Post is responsible for the following editorial statement:

"The cabinet, after gravely considering the matter with President Arthur, came to the conclusion that it was not only not prudent but unsafe for him to attend the body of President Garfield to its resting-place at Cleveland. The reason for this conclusion, although not publicly acknowledged, was that there would be a great risk of his being made the victim of some Ohio assassin's bullet, whose resentful feelings had driven him to simulate if not actual temporary insanity."

Gen. Grant predicts that Arthur will have a prosperous administration.

Scientific advancement.

Scientific advancement, it has been remarked, has been slower and less noticeable in the care of the sick and the treatment of disease than in any other department of human knowledge. The life or death of a patient is too frequently a mere matter of accident or chance. Some great discoveries, however, have been made and certain remedies are known and

used with almost infallible curative results. Such a remedy is Taxinax where a diseased liver is involved, or where disease of the Bowels, Kidneys or Spleen prevail. Dr. A. J. Stoner, Agent.

death of Capt. Bartley G. Pugh, aged 41 years, son of the late Col. Isaac C.
Pugh, which took place at his late home
near Waverly, in Morgan county, on Sunday.

The Danville fair last week is put down as a success. The premiums amounted to about $250, and the officers announce that they will all be paid in full. Macon county will probably do likewise to morrow.

be taken to select ones of the finest and prettiest displays of goods ever shown in Decatur. The firm has engaged one of the most skillful milliners to be had in Chicago, who will arrive here on Monday Sep. 24. She will introduce all the very latest metropolitan styles in the mildest line. Please call and examine the new stock as it will commence to arrive
the first of next week. Sept 17 d&w.

The receipts at the McLean county fair,
which lasted four days, amounted to just $400; the premiums offered footed up $350; and the running expenses, not counting the printing bill, amounted to about $100, leaving $250 to pay $625 in prizes. There is a mortgage on the grounds of $8,300, and the interest due now is $709. The Bloomington folks are in a bad shape financially, and will never make a success of their fair unless a change of management is effected. A fair well managed must prove a success.

The next theatrical attraction at the opera house will be the first appearance
in Decatur of America's greatest character actor, Mr. Frank Mordaunt in his artistic creation of Capt. Marline Weather-gate, a New Bedford Whaler, in the comedy "Old Shipmates." He will be supported by a strong company.
The company will appear on Friday evening of this week, Sept. 30th. Prices as usual. See ad.

A PORTRIC doctor is in hot water, and
"Dr." Bance, who is still in our jail, ought to be in full sympathy with him.—
Dr. H. N. Brown has been arrested upon placed under $600 bonds for his appearance on Oct. 8th, to answer to the charge of practicing medicine without license.

AT the United Brethren Conference held at Mount Chapel, Christian county, last week, Rev. Trueblood was appointed pastor of the Decatur church; Rev. L.
Field, presiding elder of the Decatur district; Rev. Young, pastor of the church at Elwin; Rev. Shadé, pastor of Garver church; Rev. Kipple, pastor at Casner

Who is he? The Clinton Public states that a Marion doctor came to that city on last Tuesday with $50, which he intended for the payment of a mortgage note. The doctor was tempted by a gambler to invest $33 in his little game, and the gambler won.

At one o'clock Sunday morning a C. &
A. freight train ran into a Wabash freight
at the Jacksonville Junction, and there was a general smash. Nobody hurt.
The wood work of one engine, several coal cars of the C. & A. and the C. & A.
passenger depot were consumed by fire.

A boy named William Loat, whose home is on North Church street, is suffering from a fracture of his left arm near the shoulder, resulting from a fall from a wagon. He is attended by Dr. Wheeler and Sparks, and is doing nicely.

The Marion Odd Fellows will give a picnic at the Texas school house on Thursday of next week, Oct. 8th. The Decatur brethren are invited to participate in the festivities of the occasion.

The Decatur postoffice was not opened this morning until 8:30 o'clock, when the door stood ajar for the public to enter.
The office remained open until 1 o'clock this afternoon, when it was closed for the day.

CRIMINAL CHIPS.

Two young men named John Atkins and Ed. Chenoweth were lodged in the county jail on Sunday, charged with stealing $25 from a colored employee at the Central Hotel.

Lafayette Fortner and Charles Nolan
had a quarrel at D. A. Maffit's large ice house on Saturday afternoon about some work that had to be done. Nolan instead of assisting the men as it is claimed he should have done, fell asleep, and when he was awakened by Fortner he got mad.

Fortner chucked Nolan, who was in a terrible rage, attempted to get up and do him bodily harm, but before the latter could gain his feet, Fortner struck Nolan a blow on the side of his head with the ironed end of a pitch fork, which knocked Nolan insensible. Nolan was removed to St. Mary's hospital where he was attended by the hospital surgeons. He was still alive to day and will probably do well.

Fortner was arrested and now in the county jail. Nolan is a tramp in this section and is said to be a troublesome character. One day last week while on the ice wagon he struck one of Maffit's employees on the head with a deadly weapon, but did the man no harm except to place both of his eyes in deep mourning.

"OUR DEAD"

was the subject of Rev. W. H. Prostley's memorial sermon at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning, delivered in the presence of a large congregation.

It was a beautiful tribute to the martyred President. The interior drap-ings and floral offerings were very tastefully arranged. Services were held in the evening.

AT STAFFORD'S CHAPEL.

Rev. W. H. Musgrave devoted the morning hour to an appropriate memorial service. The altar here was also draped in sombre bunting, flags and flowers. Dr.
Davies was announced to preach in the evening.

REV. M. L. LAWS

at the Baptist church at 10:30 took for his subject "Lessons from the President's Death," and at the evening hour his theme was "Man a Wreck." Both services were memorial.

AT MACON.

A correspondent writes us from Mac-eon that the churches were draped in mourning Sunday and services were held in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

SUNDAY IN DECATUR.

Rev. J. P. Dimmitt's First Discourse—Memorial
and Other Services at the Decatur Tabernacle.

In most of the churches in Decatur on Sunday the services were mostly of a memorial character, and all the pulpits were tastefully draped in mourning in memory of the late President.

REV. J. P. DIMMITT,

the new pastor of the First M. E. Church, occupied the pulpit at that church on Sunday morning and evening, and delivered two fine discourses. At the morning

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE!

Used in the principal Churches for Communion purposes.
EXCELLENT FOR LADIES AND WEAKLY PERSONS AND THE AGED.

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE,

FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED NATIVE WINE IS MADE FROM THE JUICE OF THE PORTO GRAPE, WHICH IS GROWN IN THIS COUNTRY.

It is a pure juice of the grape, produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and strength has partake of its general qualities, and that weakness invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly adapted to the aged and infirm, and suitable to the various ailments that afflict the weaker sex. It is every respect a wine to be had on.

P. J. SHERRY.

The P. J. SHERRY is a wine of superior character, and partakes of the grape from which it is made. For Purifying, Pictures and Medicinal Properties, it will be found unequalled.

P. J. BRANDY.

This BRANDY stands unrivaled in the Country, being far superior for medicinal purposes than any other.

IT IS A PORT DISTILLATION FROM THE GRAPES.

It has a delicate flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled, and is in great favor among first-class families.

See the signature of ALFRED SPEER PASSAU, N. J., over the cork of each bottle.
